"The town of San Marino, which grows around its mountain, is protected by a wall, and shelters about 2,000 people. It contains the republic's parliament building, a fine type of public structure, much more pre-tentious than the legislative halls of a number of nations many times as large. There are five churches and one or two other interesting architectural features in the city.

The parliament of San Marino is a representative body, with sixty members chosen for life service from among the burghers, landowners and nobility. The executive power reooses in a committee of twelve, chosen from among the representatives and of two 'reigning captains' selected by the chamber from its member ship every six months. The annual income and expenditure is about $60,000. San Marino has no Dublic debt. It has a treaty of friendship with
